It is about time the Provincial government appointed a brand reader for Didsbury. The parties that were appointed seem to have disappeared somewhere and the consequence is if a farmer has a stray animal on his premises he has to send to Olds to get a brand reader down here to inspect the brand before the farmer can take steps to advertise or dispose of the animal, with a consequent large outlay for expenses. Quite a few instances of this state of affairs have been brought to our attention in the last few weeks and it appears to us that it is not a fair proposition or one that is conducive to the best interests of the stray law. Every convenience should be supplied to the man who is honestly trying to locate the owner of stray animals. If he has to pay a good big price to get a man from another town to read brands he has to pay it out of his own pocket, which in some cases is a great inconvenience. True, the farmer gets it back if the owner turns up or if the animal is sold, but why should either the owner or the man who has to advertise the animal be put to the extra expense of bringing a brand reader from another town when half the expense could be saved by having a local man do the work. It is to be hoped that our local member will look into this matter and bring it to the attention of the proper authorities.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

A BAD STOMACH

Mrs. S. Keast of Clarkson, Ont., says: "A bad stomach trouble that had bothered me for years, baffled and puzzled skilled physicians, was nicely relieved by Miona. My food would not digest but fermented in my stomach, forming a gas that gave me untold suffering and pain and also made me weak, nervous, irritable and unable to rest. Since using Miona I can go to bed at night and sleep and wake up in the morning refreshed. I cannot speak too highly of Miona."

The dyspeptic nervous or otherwise who does not give Miona a trial is losing an opportunity to regain health, for Miona takes away all stomach disturbances, such as vomiting of pregnancy, sea or car sickness and the stomach sickness after excessive indulgence. All druggists 50c or from the R. T. Booth Co., Limited, Fort Erie, Ont. Sold and guaranteed by H. W. Chambers.

CHAPTER IX.
At The Window

Mrs. Annings had kind and stout and inquisitive, a motherly soul, good at butter-making and fond of tasting of nothing at all.

She helped to lay Lily Warren on a horsehair sofa in her best parlour, and gazed at her with such an air of authority that the young girl's face and lips began to assume a more natural tinge.

"No need to lose her habit," she observed to Harry, as she noted her visitor's slender form, and contrasted it mentally with her own generous outlines.

"There's nothing of her. Did her horse throw her?"

"No, he was running away with her when I stopped him. I was in the way."

"A friend of yours, sir?"

"Yes."

"You are a stranger here, sir?"

"I came last night."

"Do you like strangers, Mrs. Annings said enthusiastically. "Six or seven years ago we had heaps of 'em, and even four or five years back they'd come over from home or Beaumont or Here Longford, just to look at the inscription in the churchyard, and to stand on the bridge and say, 'You have seen the churchyard, sir?'"

"Oh, yes."

"It's a pretty place, is Crayborne; but it was only the murders that brought the people, and not that none of the guidebooks speak of them."

people have forgotten 'em. Ladies Abbey grounds used to be shown to visitors two or three times a week; but after poor Mr. Roger's death it was shown no more."

"Did you know Roger Clavert?"

"Of course I did! Why, my husband taught the boy to ride. He was coachman at Lyllyington Court, and I was maid at Vale House, so it's odd we should have come together, seeing the families didn't speak, even before the crimes. I think the young lady is coming to, now. Is she your sister, your wife, may I ask?"

"The young lady is only a friend of mine," Harry answered.

Then he flushed under his sunburn, for the young lady in question gave proof that she was no longer invisible by suddenly blushing a rosy red.

Aware that she had betrayed herself she sat up three inches, and began elaborately thanking everyone for looking after her. In the middle of her polite speech she stopped short, looked hard at Harry and then turned up from the sofa and clapped her hands.

"It is young Don Quixote," she exclaimed. "How in the world did you get here?"

Hardly had the words left her lips when she suddenly grew red, and evidently regretted having spoken them. But Harry answered at once in her own vein.

"It is indeed Don Quixote to help Dulcinea," he said.

"Thank you for stopping my horse," she said sedately as she sank back on her sofa. "It is only the second time in my life that I have ridden, and I should have known how to manage him better."

"Would it not be wiser not to ride alone at first?"

"Wiser, yes. But, oh, so stupid! I had a groom with me when I started, but I gave him the slip and was thoroughly enjoying myself, when a motor car frightened my horse, and he went tearing off. I must get back now."

She rose, but became pale and seemed to totter on her feet.

Mrs. Annings threw a plump arm around her and made her sit down again.

"You've been shaken too much," she observed. "Have a rest now. You mustn't mind my leaving you a bit, as those girls are no good without me, and I don't want you to go home hungry."

"I know what is the matter with me," the young girl exclaimed. "I came out before breakfast and I am dreadfully hungry."

"Are you far from home?" asked Harry.

"Every bit of ten miles," she answered dutifully. "I wonder whether I could possibly have a ride with you."

"I could possibly have a ride with you."

"I could possibly have a ride with you."

"I could possibly have a ride with you."

"I could possibly have a ride with you."

HAD THROAT TROUBLE SINCE CHILDHOOD

All Treatments Failed. Relieved by Peruna.

Mrs. Wm. Hohmann, 2761 Lincoln Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I was once in bed with pillows propped up behind me, but at still the cough would not let me sleep. I thought and everybody else that I had consumption."

"So reading the papers about Peruna I decided to try it, without the cough, but it did not help me. I thought and everybody else that I had consumption."

"We will suppose anything you like, Miss Morgan."

"Morgan really is my name."

"Why not?"

"I should like you to think I keep on inventing names."

"After all, what does it matter what I think, as we have never met before?"

"It matters because you have perhaps saved my life, and I am very grateful to you, and I want to be friends," she said, offering him her hand with a charming smile.

"We are friends," he said, giving her fingers a cordial pressure. "I always believe just what my friends tell me, and no more."

Mrs. Annings hastened in with the breakfast as he released the hand of Lillias. The farmer's wife decided that they were courting, and was pleased to see it. She placed a big bunch of country garden flowers, rosemary and marigold, honeysuckle, dog-roses and white morning glories, before them in a blue and grey jug as she finished setting the table.

"Lily Anne brought that jug from foreign parts. Sometimes she comes and has breakfast or tea here with me and John. And she always asks for this jug filled with flowers on the table. We call it her birthday present."

"Do you know this Lily Anne?" Harry asked on the next occasion.

"I have seen her," Lillias replied after a moment's hesitation. "But I cannot say I know her. Lily Anne must be very difficult to know."

"Why do you say that?" he asked quickly.

"I am afraid of her," Lillias answered in a low voice. "There is something shadowy and tragic about her. She seems to me to have walked straight out of a play of Maeterlinck."

"Is she beautiful?"

"I suppose she is, but her beauty gives me the creeps. It isn't human."

Harry said no more, but he recalled a saying he had heard to the effect that one pretty woman cannot appreciate another. They were as dissimilar as two women could be, this lively girl and the quietly Lady Anne. Harry felt that he could like Lillias amazingly, but he could worship Lady Anne.

In a moment, it was a delightful breakfast. Lillias was a brilliant chatter-box. Harry was an excellent listener. Both were happy and hungry. John, when he presently returned to the farm, was informed by his wife that a young couple were "sweet-heating it in the parlour," and Lillias, who was a big tactician, man, with a square, impressive face, and little, shrewd, light eyes, shrugged his shoulders and opined that "it was his business."

Nevertheless, he went into the kitchen when the room was empty, and softly drew back for the space of an inch the buttery hatch window, through which dishes could be handed out into the parlour. Peeping through the aperture, he got stock of the young man and girl as they laughed and flirted over the toupie and eggs and bacon. He stared far longer and far harder at Harry than at Lillias; but very little about the appearance of either of them had escaped him by the time he closed the little window.

The young couple did not suspect his secret scrutiny; but, as Lillias was on the point of rising from the table, having fingered one of the scrumptious meal as long as possible, she suddenly changed colour. A look of terror flashed into her eyes, and she caught at Harry's arm.

"The window," she whispered. "That horrible face!"

Clay Pipe Still Here

The clay pipe still here, it is always to be seen tucked, sent down, in the strap which the dustman and the coalman use to lift up the legs of their corduroys—just beneath the knees. The china cigar holder, however, is not only dead, but forgotten. Lady Dorothy Nevill can recall the monotony. "Lord Abercromby," she notes, "remembers having seen my father-in-law, the Hon. George Nevill, born in 1760, smoking a cigar through a china holder before the most uncomfortable method of smoking possible. These old-fashioned china cigar holders were often elaborately painted." Just the very thing, in fact, for a birthday present to the husband.

There will be no occasion in a short time for Prince Rupert, the Pacific terminus of the G. T. P. to import its supplies of cement from England, Germany or even Victoria, as last summer there was discovered near Shanes, B. C., which is on the line of the great Transcontinental Railway, a large deposit of lime stone that is considered perfect for the manufacture of cement. This should prove a powerful stimulus to the building boom in Prince Rupert.

Ready for the Warden

To make sure that the boy was not disobeying the bass fishing law, the game warden took the string of fish out of the water and found only catfish, perch and suckers on the line. A few feet farther down the stream he found a large black bass wiggling on a string weighted down with a stone, and asked the boy what he was doing with the fish.

"Well, you see," answered the boy, "I've been taking my bait all morning, and so I just did him up there until I got through fishing."

Last year the consumption of coal in this country was 562,000,000 tons in round numbers, in England 500,000,000 tons yearly, and in Germany about 250,000,000 tons.

Nothing Like Leather

For over twelve months now a road made principally of leather has been in use at Transvaal, Birmingham, and shows practically no signs of wear. It is another example of the elimination of that commercial bane, "the waste product," for until some ingenious person hit upon the idea of the leather road practically no use had been made of it. The road is claimed to be made of a material which is made from which it is made. The waste leather was shredded until it was a pulp. It was then treated with bitumen and tar and laid in the usual way. The road is claimed to have many great advantages. It resists fire, it does not give considerable wear, it is resilient and silent and gives a good grip for motor tires and similar objects. It is a comfort to the rider, it is claimed to be the heaviest vehicle that has so far passed over it have made no impression on it.

VISIT OF THE PRINCE AT THE ATTRACTION OF GERMANY

Premier Asquith Says that Visit of Viscount Haldane to Berlin Had Reference to Desire of Both Parties to Reach Amicable Understanding

London, Eng.—The opening of the Parliamentary session which is to deal with Home Rule, Welsh disestablishment and electoral reform, was marked by a statement of Premier Asquith that the visit of Viscount Haldane, secretary of war to Berlin was made at the invitation of Germany, and that the conversations between the British war minister and the German authorities had reference to a desire on the part of both parties that the existing tension should be relieved.

Interest in this statement completely overshadowed the government's huge legislative programme. Since Secretary Haldane's visit to Berlin the British people have been prepared for the announcement that it had to do with Anglo-German relations, but they hardly hoped that the conversations had proceeded as far as the prime minister's guarded statement.

His hopeful words, that he believed that the conversations may have more than negative results have caused a sensation here. Andrew Bonar Law and Lord Lansdowne, leaders of the Opposition, respectively, hoped for the promotion and the House of Lords had been informed of the course of the discussion, for although they spoke in different terms, Lord Lansdowne assured the Government of "valuable information" and to secure a better understanding of Germany.

Speeches on domestic affairs dealt only generally with the government's huge legislative programme. Bonar Law in a fighting speech promised to offer stubborn resistance to Home Rule and other measures. Lord Lansdowne intimated that Home Rule will meet its fate in the House of Lords.

It will, therefore, have to be re-passed by the house of commons as provided by the parliament bill.

Only passing reference was made of electoral reform and the possibility of woman's suffrage.

These measures will come in the longer debate on the amendments to the address which are due to the opposition and laborites.

The King's speech, proved disappointing to both supporters and opponents of woman's suffrage. The Tim-

"Scant" reference to Home Rule in the King's speech disappointed Irish Nationalists who had hoped for a more fervent allusion to this prominent measure of the session. The Nationalist still maintains that the bill will not be introduced until after the election.

Regina, Sask.—In the local House, on motion of acting Premier (Caldwell), seconded by the Attorney General, it was decided to send to Mr. Seager Wheeler and Dr. Seager a copy of the following resolution, which was passed by a unanimous vote.

"Whereas at the Exhibition at the City of New York, United States of America, in November, 1911, a prize one thousand dollars in gold was offered by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy for the best exhibit comprising one hundred pounds of milling wheat grown on the American continent in the years 1910-11.

"And whereas the said prize was won by Mr. Seager Wheeler of Northern Saskatchewan, and the second and third prizes by farmers residing in Alberta and Manitoba respectively.

"And whereas the wheat exhibited by said Mr. Wheeler was of a variety known as Marquis, originated by the Canadian Experiment Station, Ottawa, by Dr. Charles Saunders, the Dominion Cerealist;

"And whereas the facts recited in the foregoing fact sheet credit to him and have resulted in much valuable breeding for Saskatchewan and Canada;

"Therefore be it resolved that this House of Saskatchewan, in honor of Mr. Seager Wheeler, upon his achievement and the prize he won for this province, and also to Dr. Charles Saunders of Ottawa, upon having originated so valuable a variety of wheat, do hereby give every grower of wheat in this province a copy of the same.

SIR EDWARD GREY HONORED

British Foreign Minister is Created Knight of the Garter.

London, Eng.—The King has created Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and a few of the highest among nobility.

This distinction is limited to members of the Royal Household and a few of the highest among nobility.

It has been conferred upon Sir Edward Grey, undoubtedly by the Premier's suggestion and is construed as the government's answer to the attacks, particularly on the part of Liberals, on Sir Edward Grey's foreign policy.

The "Daily Graphic" suggests that Mr. Asquith is not to resign the Premiership and that he will be succeeded by Sir Edward Grey.

It further suggests that Secretary Haldane's mission to Berlin was to explain that, although Sir Edward Grey has been created with an anti-Liberal policy, his accession to the Premiership would not interfere with Great Britain's desire for an entente with Germany.

An evidence confirming its idea, the Daily Graphic points out that Premier Asquith, private secretary, Augustus Nash, has recently been appointed to another position under the Government, and that the Premier has not nominated, making it difficult, adds the Graphic, to avoid the conclusion that Asquith no longer requires a secretary.

The Times says: "The foreign secretary, Sir Edward Grey, who has been made a Knight of the Garter, is the only commoner to receive such an honor since Lord Walpole. The order, excluding foreign sovereigns and princes of the blood, is the highest honor in the gift of the sovereign, and twenty-five knights. Sir Edward takes the place left vacant in the order by the death of the Duke of Devonshire."

"The only two other precedents of the order since the death of the Duke of Devonshire, who was made a Knight of the Garter before he received the order, were in 1660, and of Sir George Villiers, afterwards Duke of Buckingham, who was created a knight of the order in 1616."

"Sir Grey's gift to Sir Edward Grey is interpreted as a signal testimonial of His Majesty's confidence in the foreign secretary and obtains particular significance in view of Lord Haldane's visit to Germany."

"It was necessary to go back to England and gave a report of his trip at a cabinet council recently held. No official formal report to the House of his mission is as yet forthcoming, but it is expected that reference will be made to the speech given at the throne at the opening of Parliament or that a statement will be made from the throne in the course of the debate on the address in reply to the King's address."

iv, 3—Golden Text, Heb. ii, 18.

Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The record of the baptism is found in Matthew and Luke, but most fully in Matthew, iv, Luke ii, 25, we read that Jesus began to be about thirty years of age and we cannot but wonder at the bold and audacious life of all those thirty years at Nazareth.

How can we ever journey at the limitations and humiliations in our lives as we think of this life lived for us? He came from Nazareth, where he had been brought up (Luke iv, 16), and after his return to heaven he called himself "Jesus of Nazareth" (Acts ix, 17); yet Natanael said, "Can there ever be good come out of Nazareth?" He came from Nazareth, where he had been brought up (Luke iv, 16), and after his return to heaven he called himself "Jesus of Nazareth" (Acts ix, 17); yet Natanael said, "Can there ever be good come out of Nazareth?"

NEW CHINESE REPUBLIC

German Imperial Pressman Writes Dr. Sun Offering Co-Operation

Nanking, China.—President Sun Yat Sen has received a long telegram from Yuan Shi Kai couched in most friendly terms, acknowledging and honoring the new Republic, the president and ministers of the Nanking government.

He relinquishes China into their hands, greeting them as brothers, expressing the hope that the future of the country will be prosperous and offering his co-operation.

There is every reason to believe that Nanking will be the capital of the Republic.

Tang Shi Yi said recently: "The edict is perfectly clear and satisfactory and the addition of the throne is absolute. I am now a plain official of China and have no connection with politics."

The proposed Republican constitution consists of three parts. The first follows the French model. The president and vice-president will be elected by congress, which will also elect the premier, the latter selecting his cabinet subject to the approval of the congress.

It will establish religious freedom and provide for conscription.

The text of the edict is issued by the throne is as follows: "The Emperor of China has respectively received the following edict from the hands of Her Majesty, the Empress Dowager."

"In consequence of the uprising of the Republican army to which the people of the province have responded, the Empire is seeking a holding cauldron and the people are plunged in misfortune."

"Yuan Shi Kai was therefore commanded to despatch commissioners in order to confer with the Republic with a view to calling of a national assembly to decide the future form of government."

"Months have elapsed and no settlement is now evident. The majority of the people are in favor of a Republic. From the presence of the people's hearts the will of Heaven is discernible. How could we ignore the desire of millions for the glory of one family?"

"Therefore, we, the Empress Dowager and the Emperor hereby vest the sovereignty of the Chinese Empire in the people."

"Let Yuan Shi Kai organize to the full the powers of the provisional Republican government and confer with the Republic to the end of assuring of peace in the Empire and in forming a great Republic with the union of Manchuria, China, Mongolia and Tibetans."

"We, the Empress Dowager and the Emperor, will thus be enabled to live in retirement from the responsibilities and cares and enjoying without interruption the nation's courteous treatment."

SORES FROM ELBOWS TO FINGERS

Zam-Buk Worked a Miracle of Healing.
Reverend Gentleman Fully Corroborates

Miss Kate L. Dolliver, of Caledonia, Queens Co., N. S., says: "I must add my testimony to the value of Zam-Buk. My fingers and sores broke out on my arm, and although I tried to heal them by using various preparations, nothing seemed to do me any good. The sores spread until from fingers to elbow was one mass of ulceration."

"I had five different doctors, and faithfully carried out their instructions. I drank pint after pint of blood medicines, tried salve after salve, and lotion after lotion; but it was of no avail."

"My father then took me thirty miles to see a well-known doctor. He photographed the arm and hand. This photograph was sent to a New York hospital to the specialist; but they sent word they could do nothing further for me, and I was in despair."

"One day a friend asked me if I had tried Zam-Buk. I said I had not, but I got a box right away. That first box did me more good than all the medicine I had tried up to that time, so I continued the treatment. Every box healed the sores more and more, until, to make a long story short, Zam-Buk healed all the sores completely. Everybody in this place knows of my case and that is Zam-Buk alone which cured me."

Minister corroborates.—The Rev. W. B. Parker, of Caledonia, Miss Dolliver's minister, writes: "This is to certify that the testimony of Miss Dolliver is correct as far as my knowledge goes. I have known her for a year and a half, and am fully satisfied by Zam-Buk, it is remarkable."

Wherever there is ulceration, blood-poison, rheumatism, skin eruptions, cuts, burns, bruises, or any skin trouble, or disease, there Zam-Buk should be applied. It is also a sure cure for piles. All druggists and stores sell it free, per box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price of postage and a small initial fee and a subscription.

A species of white ants, called termites, is noted for its high hills of dwellings. If the houses of men were proportionately high, size for size, the humblest cottage would be a mile in height.

Mothers Value This Oil.—Mothers who know how suddenly a group may seize their children and how necessary prompt action is in applying relief, always keep at hand a supply of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, because experience has taught them that there is no better preparation to be had for the treatment of this ailment, and they are wise for its various uses render it a valuable medicine.

Jane Austen's Sailor Brother

The House of Commons has declined to abolish prize money, and, indeed, when one remembers the great people who have enjoyed and been encouraged by it, one is not sorry. Jane Austen's sailor brothers were awarded for their valor in this way. Charles Austen was lieutenant of the Endymion, under Captain Philip Buxton, in 1809.

On the occasion of the capture of the Scipio the encounter took place in a violent gale; but in spite of a cold and weather he put off in a boat with only four men, and boarded the vessel. Jane Austen writes to tell her sister Cassandra how he spent his prize money.

"Charles has received £20 for his share of the privateer, and expects £10 more; but what avail is it to take prizes if he lays out the produce in presents for his sisters? He has been buying gold chains and other crosses for us. He must be well accousted. I shall write again by this post to thank and reproach him. We shall be unbarberly fine."

These Pills Cure Rheumatism.—To many who suffer from rheumatism a trial of Parmentier's Vegetable Pills is recommended. They have pronounced action upon the liver and kidneys and by regulating the action of these organs as an alternative in preventing the admittance of uric acid and blood that causes this painful disorder. They must be taken according to directions and used steadily and they will speedily give evidence of their beneficial effects.

Never be in your place of business when a person wants to borrow money of you, because if you are in, you will be out, but if you are out you will be in.

The Balking Party
A Toronto man in company with a friend was driving a big car along a road in the interior of Hastings County, when they met an old-fashioned carriage in which were an old-fashioned couple. The frightened country people jumped to the ground and the motor car came to a halt.

"Observing the consternation of the startled couple, the owner left his car and stepped toward them."

"If you will let me," he said, "I will lead your horse past our machine."

"Never mind the horse, stranger. You lead my old woman past that thing and I'll get the horse by all right."

The Fool and His Money.
The money that was so recklessly squandered by the young man of whom we read much in the news papers, a member of "the idle rich" was never worked for by him. It was never earned, never accumulated nor really appreciated. His new owner, whom it was bequeathed, whether unexpectedly, or after long and impatient waiting, had never watched it growing; he had never planted the seed, nor tilled the soil of which it was the harvest. Perhaps this is why we accept it as a truth that "the fool and his money are soon parted."

But we beg to convince the comforter belief that the conditions could never affect us in the same way.

Brought Down His Man
Hon. Martin Burrell was explaining, at the live stock men's dinner in Toronto how hard it was for a politician to please everybody. "I haven't say too much in praise of the horsemen," he said, "for the cattle men will be offended."

You may have heard the story of the Englishman and the Frenchman who were to fight a duel in a pitch-dark chamber, firing their pistols at a word of command. The Englishman being courageous and tender-hearted, didn't wish to kill his opponent, so, having previously located the chimney, where the word was given he fired up the flue—and brought down the Frenchman.

"Now, remember, if you ever have to tell this story in France, be sure to make it the Englishman who drops out of the chimney."

Why He Was Lucky

When the man who had been hit by the automobile at last opened his eyes a sliver of relief went up from him. "It's a wonder you weren't killed," said one of the bystanders. "You're luckier than most of the fellows who get hit."

"I certainly am," replied the victim, rubbing his bruises. "I got hit by a car just before he struck me."

THE POWER THAT DRIVES THE HUMAN FACTORY

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Help the Blood and Make You Well

The human body is the baseliest factory in the world. There is no clock hours day, no slack season, no holidays, no cessation of labor at any time. Day and night work is being carried on in the workshop of your body, and it never ceases until the engine—the heart—stops forever.

The factory of your body has its motive power, without which it would have to close down at once. That motive power is the blood, healthy, rich, red blood which keeps your whole system efficient and which drives away all diseases that may attack it.

Good, red blood is the chief controller over every action of the system of all the energy you possess. It builds up every substance of your muscles, nerves, sinews and bones. It removes the waste and poisonous products constantly created in your body, which, if allowed to build up, cause disease and weakness of every kind. Good blood gives energy and vitality to the nervous system, regulates the function of the stomach, intestines, liver, kidneys and other organs of the body, and it purifies and enriches your blood the health of your whole body depends.

Often the blood begins to fail and becomes thin and poor in quality. It becomes loaded with waste matter and stagnated with poisons. Then it is that the motive power of your body's workshop goes wrong, your physical machinery becomes disorganized and you fall ill. You become anemic; maybe the nerves break down, or you begin to suffer from indigestion, neuralgia, general debility, severe headaches, pains in the back or side, rheumatism, or even paralysis.

In all failures of the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best known remedy. These pills actually make new, rich blood, which brings health and energy to every part of the body. Thousands and thousands of people, not only in Canada, but all over the world, testify to the truth of this statement.

The following is a bit of proof. Mrs. Fred Stricker, Jr., Moorefield, Ont., says: "A few years ago I was a physical and nervous wreck. I had pains throughout my whole body. I had no appetite and my stomach felt as if there was a big lump in it. The least exertion would make my heart beat violently and I was attacked by heat, violent colds and such a weakness that my breath would come in gasps. I was under a doctor's care for nearly two months, but got very little relief. I then tried other remedies, but none of them helped me. Finally I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and this was the first medicine that relieved me of my trouble. After taking the pills a few weeks I was much better, and by the time I had taken ten boxes I was entirely recovered. I now always keep the pills in the house and if I feel the least worn out or nervous I take a box and feel all right again."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Out of 750 samples of milk examined in London during three months 100 were pronounced tuberculous. To find the source of infection 8,750 cows had to be examined. They were located on 102 farms scattered all over the country.

Household troubles: Headache, Tachycardia, Stomach ache, Hamlin Wizard Oil cures these aches and pains—so why don't you keep a bottle in the house.

A Natural Bent
"Prof. Sam and Miss Glaylight, 'I want you to suggest a course in life for me. I have thought of Journalism—"

"What are your inclinations?"

"Oh, my soul yearns and throbs and pulsates with an ambition to give the world a life work that shall be marvellous in its scope and widely entertaining in the vastness of its structural beauty."

"Woman, you're born to be a milliner."

CANNIBAL ETIQUETTE

Scoteman's Twenty-Two Years in Central Africa

Mr. Daniel Crawford, who recently returned from the wilds of British Central Africa to his native town of Greenock, at a public lecture narrated some of his experiences during the twenty-two years that he dwelt with the cannibals in the centre of the dark continent.

Speaking of the cannibalistic traits of the natives he said he knew the postal address of a man who had served off one he would minimize a prayer and an apology. "O corpse, I have rescued you from the food, claimy you honor of a human internment." One of his "boys" accidentally shot his father, and as it is a cannibal point of etiquette that one may not eat one's own father, he spared the body along to several of his friends.

Once a cannibal chief when he was seeking to improve and what happened when there had been a battle between him and white men, and when told that they were all decently buried, exclaimed: "Oh, look at the waste; the white man kills for murder only, but the black man kills for life."

The cheapness of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator puts it within reach of all, and it can be got at any druggist.

An Ancient Instance

Medievalists just turned forty-six. "Why do you say that?" "You're a year too old, you snob!" "You don't feel it, you're with raucous roar."

"You'd better Obedize me, quite?" "You don't. I'll live nine centuries more!"

And so he did—for spite. "Why do you say that?" "You're a year too old, you snob!" "You don't feel it, you're with raucous roar."

Carnival a Success

The skating carnival held at the rink on Friday night last was a great success, not only in the number of spectators but also in the number of those who dressed for the carnival. A great deal of fun was provided the outsiders by the antics of some clowns and altogether the affair was a success. Unfortunately several Carstairs people came up too late as the judging had been completed before they arrived, but they had some very good costumes and were the cause of very favorable comment by the spectators.

The prize winners were as follows: Best Dressed Lady—1st, Miss Baker; 2nd, Miss M. Mowers. Best Dressed Gent—1st, H. E. Sands; 2nd, C. Hildert. Best Character Dress, lady—1st, Miss Ada Hallman; 2nd, Miss S. Wood. Best Character Dress, gent—1st, H. E. Sands (suffragette); 2nd, Clint Kieber. The judges were Mrs. Dr. Reid, Mrs. J. E. Star and Mrs. Parker Reed, and their decisions were satisfactory to all present. Mr. H. W. Chambers made a very efficient master of ceremonies.

Two Horses Burned

Didsbury was again visited by fire on Friday night last when C. Hiebert's lumber yard, on the east side of the railway track, was nearly consumed by the fire. An alarm was rung in shortly after 9 o'clock in the evening, and although the fire apparatus was taken over in quick time the flames had got such a good hold that very little could be done with the exception of saving a large implement shed on the east side of the yard and a big pile of lumber and shingles on the south side.

The fire started in the hay loft over the stables in the east corner of the yards, and the lumber stacks lying connected with the barn the whole structure was in a blaze in an incredibly short time. The team of horses used for delivering lumber were in the stables and although a brave attempt was made by Corney Hiebert to get them out, the smoke was so stifling that he was unable to do so and they smothered and were burned to death.

The origin of the fire was a mystery as no one connected with the yard had been there since putting time at 6 o'clock. As the lumber yards are isolated to some extent from the main part of the town it is supposed that tramps making the hay loft a stopping place for the night and smoking was the cause.

Mr. Hiebert's loss will be between $2,500 and $3,000. The value of the buildings and lumber was about $7,500, on which $2,500 of insurance was carried. A cartload of lumber had been unloaded into the yards in the afternoon, so which there was no insurance.

His fire engines under the management of Fire Chief Berscht and his assistants gave good service considering the hold the fire had got before the alarm was given; they saved the big implement sheds on the east side of the yards besides a big pile of lumber and shingles.

The fire alarm bell, which has been unsatisfactory from the first, was out of gear and the consequence was a poor alarm was given, but the engines were taken down in good time.

Concert and Lecture

An illustrated lecture and concert which promises to be an unusual treat for the people of Didsbury is to be given in the opera house on Monday, March 4th, under the auspices of the Baptist church and in behalf of the church extension plans.

A vocal choir and a male quartette of local talent is busy preparing some very fine music in the shape of choruses for the occasion.

The lecture itself is on the "Pilgrim's Progress," by Bunyan, the immortal drama, and is illustrated by 60 pictures thrown onto the screen by a powerful stereopticon.

The pictures have been produced at great cost and every one is a work of art and beautifully colored.

Lovers of the greatest classic of English literature, as well as those who have not yet become acquainted with it, will find themselves deeply interested and entertained by this portrayal of life.
